PRESENT STATUS OF MONROE DOCTRINE

Defined by Prof. J. H. Latane at University of Wisconsin Lecture.

Madison, Wis., July 26.—"Critics of the Monroe doctrine have called it the will-of-the-whisp of American politics, but in spite of attacks it stands today, in the words of President Roosevelt, as the cardinal principle of American foreign policy," said Prof. J. H. Latane of Washington and Lee University, addressing the summer session students of the University of Wisconsin, recently on "The Present Status of the Monroe Doctrine." In the administration of Grant, Cleveland, McKinley, and Roosevelt, and continued it to the Calvo Doctrine of Argentina. He spoke in part as follows:

Wide Extended Application.
"Some one has wittily remarked that there is a latent tendency in the human mind to define anything in order to avoid the necessity of understanding it. This is strikingly illustrated in the case of the Monroe Doctrine. Writers have undertaken to define what President Monroe and John Quincy Adams had in mind when the message of 1823 was prepared, and to apply this standard to all subsequent appeals to the principle. Such a method would relegate the Monroe Doctrine to the realm of past issues, possessing merely an historical interest. The public policy of a state develops gradually as does its law, and it is characteristic particularly of Anglo-American law that it is at any given time what it is then understood to be, and not what it was originally intended to be. The Monroe Doctrine has become more widely extended in its application than its authors ever contemplated, but its limitations have been more clearly defined."

Its Dispute and Revival.
Blaine's attempts to apply the doctrine to the Isthmian canal case, and the consequent dispute following his failure, were outlined by Prof. Latane, who then spoke of the sensational revival by President Cleveland in the Venezuela case.

"The striking feature of this case," said Prof. Latane, "was that Mr. Olney, in his despatch to the British government, appealed to the Monroe Doctrine by name, claiming it as a principle of international law. He did not hold that it was international law by virtue of its assertion by President Monroe and succeeding presidents, but that it was an American state principle of a well recognized principle of international law—the right of a state to intervene in a controversy between other states when it deems its own interests threatened. President Cleveland's policy was a success, and the doctrine received its first legislative sanction."

CONSTANTINE CAPTURED IN A NEW YORK STATE VILLAGE; IS IDENTIFIED

The Prisoner Denies His Identity... Says His Brother Committed The Awful
Deed.

Chicago, July 25.—Frank J. Constantine has been captured. The supposed murderer of Mrs. Louise H. Gentry, whose head was all but severed with a razor in her apartments last January, is a prisoner in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He has been positively identified and requisition papers have been issued by Gov. Deneen for his return to Chicago for trial. He will be brought back as soon as the papers are honored in New York.

Identified by Sheriff: Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 26.—Frank J. Constantine, 25 years of age, has been under arrest in the county jail here for about a week, charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise H. Gentry, of Chicago. It was not until Wednesday that the prisoner was positively identified as Frank J. Constantine.

The prisoner was arrested at Tivoli, a little town 25 miles above this city by Deputy Sheriff Archy Hoffman. Constantine had been working as a timekeeper for a contractor at Tivoli when his presence became known by the deputy sheriff. Constantine left the neighborhood and for some time spent his time around New York and Brooklyn.

He had a sweetheart at Tivoli and by his letters to her the deputy sheriff located him. Constantine made an appointment with his sweetheart and when he arrived at Tivoli a week ago Deputy Sheriff Hoffman arrested him.

Denies He Is Wanted. Constantine says he is not the man wanted. He first said this was his name and that the Chicago murder was committed by his brother and that his brother used the prisoner's name. He says his name is Fritz Constantine. For a week the sheriff's office awaited identification.

Wednesday morning, Miss Eileen Schreiber, who is a cashier in a Chicago restaurant, came here and positively identified the prisoner. He had a week's growth of beard, but the woman was certain.

The sheriff had the prisoner clean shaven and later the woman again stated that there was no doubt as to the prisoner being the Frank J. Constantine she saw in Chicago, both in the restaurant, where he took his meals, and in a cab the day following the murder.

Constantine admitted to the sheriff that he had served time in the Elmira reformatory for conviction on a charge of burglary.

It is known that the young woman who identified the prisoner is using an assumed name, and that her name is not Eileen Schreiber, this name being assumed in order to escape notoriety in the case.

CONNOR'S IRE IS AROUSED AND HE WILL FIGHT HARD

Chairman Of The Republican State Central Committee Does Not Mean To Know Such Word As Defeat.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 26.—William D. Connor of Marshfield, chairman of the republican state central committee, held a political conference at the executive offices yesterday with Governor Davidson. These prominent republicans are in a mutualization of interests arrangement politically. The governor seeks nomination for a full term in the executive office and Chairman Connor seeks to demonstrate his superior political prowess over Senator Robert M. La Follette and incidentally gain the nomination for lieutenant governor. There is said to be a future element to the understanding by which Mr. Connor may become governor or succeed Senator Spooner at Washington. After the conference yesterday, friends of the two leaders who were called in to report and compare notes, declared that Senator La Follette's recent Lenox speech in Milwaukee has not been felt to hurt the Connor-Davidson strength and the latter are more confident than ever, for they confess that they felt some fear of the danger of the holocaust which was long promised to come from the Jove of the Wisconsin halfbreeds. On the other hand, however, Speaker Lenox, the La Follette candidate for the republican gubernatorial nomination, speaking in his home town, Superior, declared that the address of the senator had done much good in bringing the old machine into line and that he was now certain of victory over Governor Davidson in the primaries. Only three candidates for nomination for state and legislative offices have filed their nominating petitions to get on the primary ticket, but a rush of these petitions will be on in the next few days for the limit for filing them under the primary election law expires on Saturday, August 4, when the secretary of state makes up the ticket that will be voted upon in the primary election.

JOHNNY NELSON IS TO BE MOST BITTERLY OPPOSED

Matthew S. Dudgeon Will Make A Whirlwind Campaign Against The La Follette Candidate For Congress.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 26.—A whirlwind campaign against a strong political organization in six counties of Wisconsin comprising the second congressional district, will be waged by Matthew S. Dudgeon of Madison for the republican congressional nomination. Since the death of the late Congressman Henry C. Adams, John F. Nelson of Madison has had the field to himself and has greatly strengthened his organization. Mr. Dudgeon is the product of a determined opposition to Nelson by the friends of the dead congressman and by many who cannot approve the candidacy of the young lieutenant of Senator La Follette. Mr. Dudgeon says he would like to go to congress, confesses that he thinks he could do good work in Washington and frankly agrees to do his best if the people want him. He was a leader in the Wisconsin volunteers in the Spanish American war, served two terms as district attorney in this county, made a good record as a member of the legislature of 1903, but was turned out by the machine of La Follette, who desired to punish Dudgeon for refusal to be pliant to the factional lash. Mr. Dudgeon is an attorney of large practice. Mr. Dudgeon is a cousin of David Watt of Janesville.

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT FOR RUSSIA IS TALKED OF

St. Petersburg, July 26.—The government is using every means at its disposal to create the impression both at home and abroad that the crisis has been successfully passed and that all the prospects of a general upheaval have vanished.

The Press Useful.
The semi-official press is being used to disprove the stories that there is every prospect of a revolution will follow and is filled with assuring statements that the government now has a firm hold on the disorders.

Is Not Blind.
The government can not be blind to the conditions that exist under their noses or to the facts that they are living over a volcano and that the danger is far from ended but really only just commencing.

Hold Conference.
For the past forty-eight hours the central committee of the social democrats social revolutionists, peasants league, railroad men's union, military committee, and the parliamentary groups have been conferring on the question of attempting a counter coup d'etat by setting up a provisional government. No final decision has been taken.

Shorn of Power.
The remnant of the constitutional democratic deputies, many of whom, after having collected the arrears of salary and mileage due them, have started homeward, are causing indignity, but their importance has gone, neither the government nor the revolutionists paying much attention to the former dominant party in the lower house of parliament.

The government, indeed, has not abandoned its efforts to enlist moderates in the cabinet. Prof. Mourmout, the president of the dissolved house for whom Premier Stolypin was vainly searching with an invitation to go to Peterhof while the former was presiding over the outlaw parliament at Viborg, was again approached, but there is not the slightest prospect that he can be swayed, even by imperial command, to take office.

Little Chance for Gurko.
No further changes in the cabinet have been decided upon; but M. Gurko, who was assistant to M. Stolypin in the ministry of the interior, who is mentioned as M. Stuchinsky's successor as minister of agriculture, and whose character may be judged by the fact that he was higher in favor under both Baluev and Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, probably will be fettered altogether by Premier Stolypin, his name alone being sufficient to damn the new government. The same fate may overtake Military Procurator Pavloff, who is now engaged in organizing the League of Es-

THE BIG TENT BEING RAISED
MOLE'S GROVE ALIVE TODAY IN PREPARATION FOR MORROW.
NOTES OF THE ASSEMBLY
Special Rates on Interurban for Sunday—Holbrook Truly "The Chautauqua Man."
All is hurry and bustle at Mole's Grove today. The canyons for the auditorium and dwellings has arrived and Boss Canvassman Lewis, with a corps of assistants, is engaged in its placing and erection. The big tent, larger than the canopy used last season, will occupy the same position that it did last year and it is very probable that dwelling and small canyons will be raised on the north and west sides. The tents should have come yesterday morning, but there was a delay in the transfers between Sterling, Ill., and Janesville and the work is consequently hindered. But nevertheless there is no danger of the program being interfered with, as Mr. Lewis is fully equal to the situation.

Beloiters to Hear Sunday
The record crowd for the Chautauqua will probably be assembled Sunday afternoon when Rev. William Sunday speaks. "The day permits the businessman, the workman and the scholar to visit the Chautauqua without slightest work and no doubt the attendance will be enormous. Special rates have been secured on the interurban for that day and hundreds of Beloit people are expected. "Billy Sunday is widely known throughout the central west. The nation took interest in him as a baseball player and his change of vocation is a story familiar to nearly all. His work throughout northern Illinois during the past year has given him special advertising and all are anxious to see and hear this great baseball evangelist.

"The Chautauqua Man"
The Chautauqua Man is the name Harry M. Holbrook, manager of the Janesville Assembly, is widely known as. He deserves the cognomen above all others, for there is no greater, more universal promoter than he. Thus far this summer he has conducted Chautauquas at Sycamore, Sterling, Freeport, Belvidere and is now in Sandwich, Ill. All have been successful and with the exception of Freeport will have his services next season. Freeport after two seasons has deserted the Assembly.
The Opening Day Program
At one-thirty o'clock tomorrow afternoon the Chicago Glee Club will render the first of a series of concerts and the Chautauqua will be the official opening will be at two o'clock, when Rev. J. W. Laughlin will offer prayer. Rev. W. A. Goebel will deliver the welcome and A. E. Macdonald will respond. At half past two the regular program will be taken up. Dr. James Helvey then gives his famous lecture, "Snay Side of Life." Dr. Helvey has been on the platform for twenty-five years and is endeared to him are the thousands who have heard him. The Glee Club will offer a program, entitled "Music and Mirth" at half past four and in the evening at eight will render a full concert.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY
Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.
The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the hair is browned with scant hair. Scant falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Remembering the Indians.
Under instructions from President Roosevelt Dr. Charles A. Eastman, a Sioux Indian, has renamed more than fifteen thousand Sioux with family names in order to make the inheritance of land more simple and secure.
Where possible he had kept the original Sioux name of some members of a family, as in bestowing the name "Mudosa," meaning "White Bear" on the family of that chief. Sometimes the combination of a wife's name and husband's has made a musical name, as "Winona Otana." The favorite name for women means "she who has a beautiful home," which Dr. Eastman has anglicized in the patronymic "Goodhouse."
But by far the hardest task is in finding new names for the aboriginals of Indian nomenclature. "Bob-tailed Coyote" was a young Indian who has come to prefer himself as "Robert J. Wolf." After a long struggle with "Rotten Pumpkin" Dr. Eastman has at last recorded the owner of the name on the tribal records under the noncommittal title of "Robert Pumpkin." World Today.

Sweet peas in many rare shades and beautiful color blends were placed on exhibition at Helmstreet's drugstore this morning. Over a score of the big clusters provided a veritable feast for the eye. The blossoms were grown by J. T. Fitchett and the wonderful bacteria by the aid of which the most sterile soil can be made to give forth a bountiful harvest were employed in raising them from the seeds. Mr. Fitchett has been experimenting with the plant bacteria for two years past and in this year got his supply of the government. With their assistance he has found it possible to grow thriving plants in white sand and water.

Janesville, Beloit and Rockford Camps Will Assemble at Ho-No-Ne-Gah Park.
Arrangements for a joint picnic of the Janesville, Rockford, and Beloit camps of the Spanish War Veterans will be made at a meeting of the Harry L. Gifford camp in this city tonight. Ho-No-Ne-Gah park is to be the scene of the gathering and next Saturday the date. Three new members will be admitted tonight, making the total roll twenty-nine. The Ladies Auxiliaries of the Beloit and Rockford camps will attend. As the Janesville camp has no such organization the members will take their wives and sweethearts.

A Perfect Breakfast
A perfect breakfast is almost impossible without Malta-Vita. It gives you real nourishment and renewed vitality. For Malta-Vita is rich in nutrition—every nutritive element of the best white wheat and finest barley malt extract. Maltose is often prescribed by doctors to build up the health and strength of people with weak stomachs and poor blood. In Malta-Vita the malt extract, mixed with the flaked wheat, converts the starch of the wheat into maltose and makes it easy for even the weakest stomach to digest and adds a pleasing taste and a high nutritive value which cannot be found in other breakfast foods that contain sweetening agents such as glucose. Try Malta-Vita with milk or cream or fresh fruit.

INQUIRIES ABOUT THE BAND-STAND MATTER
First Warden Wants to Know What the Council Really Did With It.
Dear Editors: May I trouble you once more? I was so pleased in reading today that a petition had gone in for a bandstand, still I am in a quandary. The morning paper says Alderman Brockhaus had it laid on the table. What does that mean? Then the Gazette says it was presented. Was it signed that night and who signed it? Is it the business men? We would like to know if it goes to a committee and who are the committee. Now, Mr. Editor, if you will only lend us a little more of your influence and tell us all about what has been done, it won't be long before we will hear some good music. Please answer.
FIRST WARDEN.
Editor's Note—The petition was not laid on the table. It was simply held over for further consideration by the park committee of which Ald. Brockhaus is chairman. The petition was signed by a number of business men. It would be impossible to give the names here.

Why Adulterated Paint is Dear
A maker of adulterated white lead sneered "Why should paint be pure? No one eats it."
True, but when white lead is adulterated with barytes, sublimed lead, gypsum, whiting, etc., it loses the qualities which make pure white lead the best paint pigment. And when these imitations are sold as white lead, the consumer is deceived into paying white lead prices for worthless substitutes.
Shipman Pure White Lead
(Made by the Old Dutch Process)
contains no adulteration whatever, and when mixed with Pure Linseed Oil lasts as no paint made of cheap imitations can.

There is great good sense in the Spanish saying, "Through not spending enough we spend too much." This is the law and the prophets in the matter of store-advertising.

The Capital City is furnishing season talk just now with its politics.

Summer resorts are pleased with the hot weather. So are the mosquitoes.

Indiana newspapers are awakening to the great and only La Follette in a startling manner.

During July it is safe to keep track of all the health rules that are written in the book.

Thermometers in Washington register ninety in the shade. Fairbanks has left the locality.

All that ails Russia is that the Grand Dukes do not care to give up their nice easy jobs.

La Follette can read men out of his party, but he cannot disfranchise them; thank goodness.

Russia contemplated a crisis for a long time and when it came it did not know how to act.

Mr. Fairbanks is to tour the Chautauques on a lecture tour. La Follette is also touring.

Any one of the four candidates for sheriff would make a good one as compared to past efforts.

District Attorney Jerome rebuking President Roosevelt for his impetuosity is amusing, not to say pathetic.

Davidson appears to be making headway despite the fact he is read out of the La Follette republican party.

Mayor Dunne has decided there are too many street-car accidents in Chicago. The people discovered that long ago.

Two Madison men bought a twenty-five-dollar brick in front of the Masonic Temple on Sunday. Rah for Madison.

Governor Davidson can thank his stars that La Follette has spoken. He can now count his friends and mark his foes.

Mr. Rockefeller has fooled the sheriff. By having his lawyer appear by proxy in court he has avoided arrest. Poor Sheriff.

Uncle Joe Cannon is so popular with the democrats of his district that they are even endorsing him for re-election.

Now there is a man named Hartie in Pittsburg whom it would not be surprising to see in a penitentiary for a visit.

Gourdan, the Chicago get-rich-quick man, is as much of a sensation and drawing card as was "Scotty" of Death Valley.

Evidently our population is not growing fast enough to suit all purposes. Kansas wants field hands and Iowa wants teachers.

Dreyfus is again a soldier of the French Republic and he promises to be a prominent feature in the army for some days to come.

After urging the death of Stoeckel the Russian commission extended a slap on the wrist to Alexieff, the arch-blunderer of the whole war.

Some men are born famous, some have fame thrust upon them, and some never acquire it all their life through. Funny situation, is it not?

The Longworths had an automobile accident and the entire world knew about it inside of six hours. Thus is fame and being a President's daughter.

Mr. Bryan was in London the other day when the English Premier got excited and cheered the Russian Douma. It must have made him feel as though he was back home again.

Secretary Root will show himself to be a great diplomat if he can win the approval of the South American republics while trying to spread the good tidings of his policy for a nation to pay its just debts.

Down in Rio Janeiro there is a conference going on that promises to be of interest to the entire world before it ends. The Americas may be united into one bond of sympathy as never before. Then let Europe look out.

While there is but a week more before the closing of the nomination papers there is still time for another candidate for sheriff, district attorney, county clerk or clerk of the court to come out; in fact, any of the county offices.

PRIMARY LAW

In his speech in Milwaukee Senator La Follette said that the present primary law was very faulty, but was the best that could be obtained under the opposition that it met in the Senate. For an unprejudiced falsehood this is the banner-stander. The primary law as it now stands as a law was the identical one which was adopted in the assembly, the then Governor's own personal following, and was passed by the Senate in the same form with the exception of the referendum being added. La Follette knows this. He merely talks as he does to throw dust into the eyes of those who do not know. They believe him, but to those who know the inner details of the story it is such a palpable falsehood it ceases to be amusing. M. H. Hagedorn as the conservatives have been this appears to be the last straw that broke the camel's back—to blame them for the mistakes of the faction.

THE PROBLEM OF RUSSIA

The world generally is not well informed about Russia. We have heard so much of disturbances among the people, so much about official incompetence, and so much about misfortune, that a kind of tradition has grown up which expects nothing but bad news from this unfortunate country. It must be remembered, too, that much of this news comes through channels which have not always been favorably disposed towards the Muscovite people. A widely scattered population representing different races under the same central government is apt to give occasion to disorders which the outside world may easily magnify. For the time at least the great burden of public interest is centered upon the awakening of the peasantry to a new sense of power.

For once the rise of this great class into a sense of its economic importance and of appreciation of its possibilities is commanding the attention not only of the government at home, but of many thinking people throughout the civilized world.

The function of the peasantry in the organization of the Russian empire has always been so important as a military factor that the autocracy has relied upon it as upon a very foundation for its throne. Consequently, the breaking away of the peasantry from the paternal guidance and control of the autocracy raises one of the most interesting questions which any nation has ever had to solve. It involves a question of the future of Russia as a military power. It puts a new phase upon the question of imperial expansion, to which Russian policy has committed itself actively, directly or indirectly. Finally, it seems to turn the tide of judgment away from foreign interests and centers the thought of the nation on the question of domestic reorganization.

The problem of national reorganization requires that account be taken of the resources of the country. The fifty provinces which make up Russia proper are among the most fertile, agricultural regions of Europe. The Asiatic dominions of Russia are large enough to afford an outlet for surplus population for many years to come.

The migration of the Russian peasant from the black belt to the Siberian plains shows that the distribution of population there has been going on very much as in the United States in the settlement of public lands. The result has been an increasing scarcity of farm labor in many of the older sections of the country. This has had the effect of allowing many estates to deteriorate in their productive power and great loss of the income of the land-owning classes. For this reason much of the gentry, which formerly furnished a large part of the economic leadership throughout the rural sections, especially, has been forced from its hereditary estates, into the army, the civil service, or into commercial and industrial pursuits in towns. There has been a degree of absenteeism which here, as in Ireland thirty years ago, led to very much the same resistance to the enforcement of the rights of ownership, and is the underlying cause of discontent.

One cannot understand the vote of the Douma on the question of the confiscation of lands without recalling the above factors in the transformation of rural Russia. The old order has for several decades been dying out; the new order has not yet come into control. Meanwhile, existing rights are apt to be forgotten, existing privileges thrust aside, and the right of might given away. There is no doubt, however, that the land question involves in it the possibilities of the sacrifice or the salvation of the future of Russia as an industrial power.

Russia has begun to scratch the surface of her magnificent natural resources. She has an industries population, and her higher social classes are composed of men and women bred to leadership, which has brought the country from vassalage to a position of the widest dominion among the powers of the earth. But all this will avail her nothing unless the people have a freer opportunity to develop resources of the country with the main regard to the enjoyment of the fruits of their labors. The union of the land and the people through the institution of private property is the fundamental condition of successful reorganization of this great empire.

In the march of reform this must never be lost sight of. The emancipation of the serfs in 1870 was but one step towards the release of pent-up power. The emancipation of labor and property from government exploitation will be necessary before Russia can stand in competition with western powers. Until this great step of self-surrender on the part of the ruling classes can be made and made effectively, the birth-struggles of the Russian people will continue with the uncertain issues of life or death. But once a resolute break is made with the past, such as the Douma in its own way appears to be forcing upon the nation today, the skies are bound to clear, and the way to a future full of hope must open before them. To this result every lover of popular welfare and national peace must gladly lend his sympathy.

PRESS COMMENT

England's Boast is Also Ours. Chicago Chronicle: Mr. Bryan's incredible as it may seem, sometimes makes a mistake. In his recent London speech he said that "we in the United States can not boast of England can that the sun never sets on our dominion." What does he mean? Did he sell the Philippines or Guam to somebody while he was away in the east? And, aside from those parts of our dominion, it was said, nearly twenty years ago when we bought Alaska and the Aleutian Islands from Russia that before the sun sets on the most western of those islands it has already risen at Eastport, Me.

Right From Uncle Ike's Town.

Marquette Eagle-Star: Two years ago there was much said by Senator La Follette and his intimate political friends about the pernicious activity of federal officers in state politics. And when the state convention met there was a platform plank dictated by La Follette which called for the abolition of the federal officeholder. But La Follette was not then a federal officeholder. He was then a candidate for governor, and he was severely criticized in view of his past position. And how will he and his friends justify or explain their present position? Does the "end justify the means?"

Reform Effort Misdirected.

Cleveland Leader: Too many fits are thrown too much breath is wasted over the slavery in which woman's delights. She has always worn corsets, she wears them today, and she will keep on wearing them just as long as a trim figure fills man's eyes with joy and turns the other woman's green. Why not utilize all this wasted reform strength where it is needed and where, better than all, it will be welcomed? Let it go for the entire abolition of the masculine collar, or let it be too radical for the times, size and directed against the collar, size and stiffness. Under present conditions the linen collar of men is neither an insurmountable park fence over which he projects his head to look longingly at the unfettered freedom beyond him. And when the laundry has completed its fell work and serrated its edges those nice leaning iron necklaces of the inquisition would be as soothing as a pretty girl's arms compared with its torture.

John Farnson's Bulldogs.

Chicago Inter Ocean: In one respect the bulldog incident in Oak Park is to be regretted. To be sure, it does not sound exactly right to hear bulldogs and Oak Park mentioned in the same breath, but if the juxtaposition must occur at all, its incongruity is somewhat relieved by the fact that the bulldogs belong to John Farnson, Oak Park's first citizen. Mr. Farnson's chauffeur is a member of our national guard. When duty calls all members of our national guard are expected to respond. If they fail to respond they are likely to be sent for. If they do not respond quietly when sent for they are likely to be compelled to respond by force. Mr. Farnson's chauffeur, was sent for. He did not respond quietly. He was making ready to take out the Farnson automobile. A detachment of our national guard arrived on the scene and attempted by force to compel him to respond. Then it was that the Farnson bulldogs were turned loose. Then it was, also, that the detachment of our national guard retired in more or less good order.

With the merits of the case we have nothing to do. But need anything be said in defense of Mr. Farnson beyond this: That when the captain of the company to which the detachment, which retired belonged called upon Mr. Farnson to obtain an explanation, an explanation and a settlement were reached and the chauffeur was excused from military service?

Russell Sage.

Chicago Tribune: It is said that the death of Russell Sage will not cause a ripple in financial circles. It has been "discounted." There are no other circles in which it will create a stir. When a mere multimillionaire dies there is none of that poignant regret which is felt when a great artist, writer, statesman, or soldier passes away. There is only a feeling of languid curiosity as to what he has done with his money. The death of a favorite actor is regarded as a calamity. That of a simple money grabber is of no moment. How little fades from earth when a rich man's breast.

If the selling of puts, calls, and straddles is a business which cannot be got along without, Mr. Sage was a useful man. To that business he gave up many active and productive years of his life, and accumulated great wealth. He quit politics on the eve of the civil war, when most men would have been eager to remain in public life, and gave himself up exclusively to money making. He lost interest in everything but collaterals. He divided mankind into two classes—those who had collaterals and those who had not. He was always ready to accommodate the former, but would have nothing to do with the latter. He grew in wealth but not in popularity. Preachers and professors have held up to scorn the mad extravagance of millionaires. Mr. Sage loathed it. He never went dashing around in a racing car. He never gave costly banquets, and his name never was mentioned in connection with a card table, or a chorus girl. He led a "simple life." The papers were full of stories of his shabby clothes and his haggling over petty purchases. He was extremely stingy. He begrudged his clerks their lunch hour. The total lack of vulgar ostentation did not make him any more popular than those rich men who flaunt their wealth in the faces of offended moralists. None of the men who assert that champagne, dinners and fancy dress balls develop socialists and anarchists has said a word in praise of Mr. Sage. No matter how an extremely rich man conducts himself it is impossible for him to please.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TO WIDEN SCOPE

New Body to Embrace Larger District—Officers to be Elected—Banquet at Park Hotel.

Wisconsin physicians from the counties of Dane, Columbia, Sauk, Rock and Green will meet in Madison on Tuesday, July 31, and the conversion of the "Central Wisconsin Medical Society of the Third Wisconsin District" is the object of the most important action to be taken at the meeting.

The forenoon session, at which the foregoing proposition and a number of technical papers will be discussed, will be held in the county courthouse. Will Elect Officers. The counties named include a large portion of the territory contributing to the "central," and the change will come about quite naturally. It is deemed desirable that all the medical societies in the state shall be parts of the established order of things, and it is likely that this will be the case very soon. When the change is effected the presidents of the five county societies will be the vice-presidents of the district society; the dues will probably be reduced, and membership in the county societies will qualify for membership in the district society, as it does in the state society.

Members from counties outside of the district and Illinois will be welcomed as before, but in the district membership in the county society will be regarded as essential.

This is also the annual meeting for the election of officers of the proposed district society and the transduction of other business.

To Hold Banquet.

At two o'clock in the afternoon a banquet will be held at the Park Hotel with President Dr. S. R. Moyer of Monroe as master of ceremonies.

The officers of the district society, which is to be widened in scope, are as follows: President—Dr. S. R. Moyer, Monroe.

Vice-Presidents—(First)—Dr. A. C. Helm, Beloit; (Second)—Dr. W. H. Washburn, Milwaukee; (Third)—Dr. W. W. Gill, Madison.

Secretary and Treasurer—Dr. C. S. Sheldon, Madison.

Board of Censors—Dr. J. F. Pemberton, Janesville; Dr. A. S. Thompson, Mt. Horeb; Dr. J. C. Cauder, Verona; Dr. J. F. Gill, Madison.

WEALTHY GIRL TRIES LIFE OF THE AGENT

Miss Elsie Davis, Daughter of a Rich Man, Agent for a Book Concern.

It is the boast that the rich American girl is as democratic as her poorer sisters, and this seems to be conclusively proven by Miss Elsie Davis, daughter of a rich Illinois man, who is acting as general agent for a Chicago publishing house. Miss Davis is the daughter of a wealthy man living in an aristocratic Illinois town and has always possessed all the luxuries that wealth and influence could procure. What ever she wished for, if money could buy it, she secured. A year ago she graduated from the high school and having always possessed a democratic spirit she resolved to make some use of her education. Therefore she secured a position as a teacher in a primary school and for the past year she has been doing her share to develop the minds of the small children intrusted to her care.

When the school closed for the summer vacation she came up to "bany" Wis., to visit friends there. While she was there she received an offer from a publishing company to become their general agent and travel for them to secure local agents for a popular line of articles. She had never done any work of that character and the novelty of it appealed to her. At first, however, the idea seemed impossible of accomplishment, for she well knew that her parents would not relish the thought of her being from home and meeting all kinds and conditions of people. However, the more she thought of the matter the more she became convinced that she would like the work and at last she resolved to try it for a time at least and not tell her parents anything of the matter.

Like the Experience. Then this young aristocrat started out to obtain a glimpse of life as it is lived among the working classes, at first hand.

The first stop that she made was at Janesville, where although at first rather confused by the many matters of business, such as getting lodging, attending to the transportation of her baggage and getting started in the new world, she found the life decidedly interesting and novel. While in the Bower City she had many interesting experiences and did very well with her line of work. After finishing here she went on to Beloit, which place she reached last Saturday evening. It was while she was there that a representative of this paper heard of her experiences from her own lips. The young lady is a thorough American in every respect and her ideas are interesting and show the right spirit.

"I like the work very much and in tend to go west if I do well at it," she said. "I think that the experience will be worth much to me in the future for I will not always have my parents to smooth the way for me over the hard places," was another remark of hers which shows what original and sensible ideas she possesses.

PLAN FIGHT FOR SAGE WEALTH

Troy Relatives to Contest Will, Alleging Undue Influence.

New York, July 26.—Every dollar of Russell Sage's great fortune is left to Mrs. Sage by a will made in 1901 except an insignificant bequest made to Mrs. Fannie Chapin of Oneida, N. Y., an only sister, who died two years ago.

The will undoubtedly will be contested by the Troy relatives of Mrs. Sage, who will charge that the 1901 will was made after a mental breakdown on the part of Mr. Sage, and that Mrs. Sage exerted undue influence over him in the distribution of his wealth.

Not one dollar of the fortune is left to charity. The only contribution Mr. Sage ever made during his lifetime for this purpose was when, after a year's solicitation by Mrs. Sage, he contributed $50,000 to build a wing of the Presbyterian hospital, of which Mrs. Sage was a vice president.

The fortune of Mr. Sage, which was popularly believed to be $100,000,000, and even thought to be greater by the best informed financial men of Wall street, amounts to only about $60,000,000.

CAPTURE TRIO OF TOUGH MEN

Sheriff and Deputies Arrest Alleged Postoffice Thieves in Ohio Town.

Zanesville, O., July 26.—In a hand to hand combat in Frank Lewis' saloon in Johnstown, Licking county, Wednesday night, Marshal Dressbach and two deputies made the arrest of Frank Burke and Ira McCarthy while Edward Harrington, escaped from them, to be caught later by a posse in a cornfield at the edge of the village.

The triumvirate of alleged outlaws, who were all armed, are thought to be the men who burglarized the post office at Crooksville, the post office at New Concord and the office of a brick plant at South Zanesville, in each instance a safe being blown.

Ammunition and a portion of nitroglycerin was carried by the party.

Violence in Drivers' Strike.

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—The strike of the drivers for the J. L. Hudson company, department store, has reached the violent stage. Ernest W. Milroy, Edward York and Joseph Padger were arrested, charged with having assaulted drivers who had taken their places.

Killed by Pitched Ball.

Dublin, Ga., July 26.—W. H. Williams, a brother of C. H. Williams, a member of the Georgia house of representatives from Laurens county, was killed in a ball game at Soperton. He was catcher, and a pitched ball hit him in the breast. He died almost immediately.

Long Prison Term.

Centerville, Mo., July 26.—Arthur Spangh, convicted of second degree murder for the killing of the sheriff of Iron county, Missouri, was sentenced to 55 years in the penitentiary.

Suspicious.

"Very peculiar coincidence," said the tall poet, as he opened the big envelope.

"What is that?" asked the brother bard.

"Why, some weeks ago I sent the editor of the Whopem Magazine a poem entitled 'The Old Mint Julep.'"

"Did he accept it?"

"Yes, but when I sent him another poem the other day he returned it with the following message: 'We accepted your first poem, but now we are full.'"

A WOMAN'S FRIENDSHIP.

Instances of Intense Personal Attachments Among Historic Characters.

When Mme. de Stael was dying she wrote Mme. Recamier, closing her letter as follows: "All that is left of me embraces you."

Mme. Recamier devoted the remainder of her life in cherishing the memory of Mme. de Stael, says the Pilgrim. The only person who ever came near filling Mme. de Stael's place in her heart was Elizabeth Foster, the beautiful duchess of Devonshire, the original of Sir Joshua Reynolds' famous portrait.

Margaret Fuller formed many impassioned connections with women during her life. They were attracted by her powers of intellect and harmony.

There are three noted instances of platonic attachments—Petrarch and Laura; and Dante and Beatrice; and Joanna Bailie and Sir Walter Scott. Mme. Roland and her husband were alike and inseparable. John Stuart Mill and his wife were companions, as were also Elizabeth and Robert Browning. These relations can be easily explained. The fever of time produces lassitude, dispels illusions, and undermines passions. Then the love of these strong souls turns into that crowning lasting union—friendship.

There was a great friendship between Goethe and his sister Cornelia. She was a year younger than he, and while not at all good-looking, had superior endowments of mind and character. The attachment between Byron and his sister, Mrs. Leigh, was most touching. She remained unalterably attached to him during the dreadful storm of unpopularity which drove him out of England. Four of his best poems were composed for and addressed to her. Byron's last words were of his sister and his daughter.

Unique Plea Unheeded. An English laborer, who was charged with stealing four fowls, said that he had been punished once, as he ate a part of one of the fowls. "It was like eating wood," he said. "I have not been well since." He was sent to prison for 21 days.

Can we longer afford to overlook the fact that we can secure the very best of dental service at about half the rates we have been paying? Dr. Richards of Janesville, the independent dentist, says he would be delighted to have his work (put out at a modest price) compared with work done by others at possibly double his prices. He affirms that the comparison will establish the fact that:

His work is good in every respect. His work is lasting. His work is done thoroughly. His work is substantial, and, in fact, not excelled by that of any other local dentist.

In addition to the reasonableness of his prices, he gives close attention to painless work. Now see what you get by having him do your dental work.

In the Summer Months...

milk sours quickly, and in the haste of getting to town some dairymen do not allow the milk to cool. The result is a tendency to sour. Instances have been known where drugs were used to preserve the sweetness. The perpetrators were prosecuted, yet it was no solace to the numerous children who were sickened by this practice. PLEURISY.

The affection of pleurisy, or pleuritis, is an inflammation of the pleura. The pleura is the membranous lining of the chest and covering of the lungs.

The trouble may have one of several, or a combination of causes, inasmuch as there are several kinds of the disease. There is the idiopathic (the disease proper), and then there is pleuritis as a complication of some other trouble, such as pericarditis (inflammation of the pericardium), scarletina, measles, Bright's disease, pneumonia, variola, etc., and there are some few cases where acute pleurisy is the result of tubercular infection, and also of alcoholism.

Idiopathic pleurisy is caused by exposure or an injury. The latter, however, is hardly correct, as it would then be a result of another abnormal condition. It may also seem rather questionable to some to say that pleuritis is the result of exposure. Of course, I am speaking of the idiopathic disease, and not as a complication. A great many are confident they have seen various cases where there had been no exposures, and yet severe pleuritis resulted.

A great many cases are contracted even while the patient is sitting, resting his feet before a fire. But this does not change the exposure cause in the least. The door or window which was open, allowing a cold draught to strike him, was not taken into consideration.

A great many are chagrined to find they have contracted a case of pleurisy after having been out in the cold; they have taken unusual precautions, and cannot understand why they should have this ill result. Let us investigate.

If people know better how to protect themselves, it would be a hard row indeed for the doctors to hoe. Numerous people wear what they are pleased to term chest protectors. All of us know how they are constructed; they are a protection merely for a small portion of the chest, and just where protection is least needed.

The question now is: Does this little article protect one from exposure which would be likely to affect the pleura? The pleura does not require nearly so much protection where this article lies as it does elsewhere. This membrane is much nearer the surface at the sides and under the shoulder blades than in the chest.

This is the reason why some persons are so chagrined to find that although they have taken the precaution to wear a chest protector, they have contracted a severe case of the difficulty now under consideration.

This cold causes, first, congestion, after which the pleura relaxes, thus permitting a gorging of the blood vessels, which would not otherwise appear. This causes excessive heat and inflammation. The affection may be of only a portion, or of one entire side, or both.

The remedies usually prescribed are blistering of some sort, probably mustard or cantharides. Bromide of potassium is also frequently prescribed for this trouble. But I would consider these remedies injurious rather than otherwise.

There is a simple remedy which is as nearly infallible as any remedy can well be, and it has the additional merit of being very simple and harmless. The condition existing in pleurisy after the trouble is fully established is excessive heat in the region affected, and that which needs to be done is to overcome this.

The patient whom we are to treat is in bed, and suffering intense pain; the respirations are short, weak and rapid—reaching 35 per minute, perhaps—the pulse rapid, but small; a slight fever; a continuous coughing, producing great distress. As the patient lies flat on the back we know both sides are affected.

The back, and, in fact, the whole of the upper portion of the chest are thoroughly washed with vinegar. Then a flannel blanket of sufficient size to fold into four-ply, and yet be large enough to cover the entire back and chest, is secured. This is wrung out of cold water, and gently placed into position, being tenderly pressed down upon the surface. It is rather surprising how quickly this becomes heated, as it was not realized how much heat really was there. But there is another flannel all ready to replace this one as soon as it becomes the least heated. It is now placed on and gently pressed to the skin, the one just removed being placed in fresh cold water. This process is continued until all of the pain disappears.

This is not all that is necessary, however. If this, and this alone, should be used in every case, I fear there would be much cause for regret. It frequently occurs that there is a greater drain placed on the general heat of the body, by this cooling than can be withstood. It then becomes necessary to overcome this without even modifying the good work that is being done.

To accomplish this a hot fomentation to the feet is necessary. Secure a large flannel blanket, and prepare this according to the directions frequently given in this department, and apply it to the feet and limbs up to the knees. By keeping up this fomentation the vital heat is supplied to the body, and the cooling process for the relieving of the pain of the pleuritis goes on without interruption, performing its mission faithfully. As soon as the pain is relieved the patient will probably doze off into a quiet sleep, and will secure some much-needed rest. When he awakens there may be a slight return of the pain. If there is, simply repeat the treatment; it will not take nearly as long this time. Two or three times repeating this treatment will be all that is necessary.

Now that it has been learned how to treat disease successfully, let us look at some of the interesting features.

Laymen are frequently struck dumb with amazement and terror by one peculiar feature of this disease. He is carefully watching a case, when, to his horror, he notices the heart pulsations to the right of the sternum. To the average layman this seems an absolute impossibility. In another case the pulsations may be noticed just as much out of their natural position, only to the left.

This is explained as follows: In the beginning of the disease, or the first stage, there is merely a hyperaemia (presence of excessive blood) of the pleura, with slight exudation. Then, in the second stage, there is increased exudation, of a grayish-yellow color, completely covering the membrane, and giving a shaggy appearance. In the third stage there is a copious exudation of a semi-fibrinous, glutinous substance, of an adhesive nature. This coagulates, and the aqueous portion absorbs, filling the pleural cavity and even distending it.

If the affection is of the left side, this distension forces the heart from its position, even so far, in some cases, as before explained, as to force it to the right of the sternum. If the affection is of the right side the heart is forced to the left.

By the method of treatment herein given there are few cases of pleurisy which cannot be readily overcome. I have seen this method of treatment effect a speedy and absolute cure where everything else had failed and the sufferer had been given up to die.

CLUB NOTES.

Minnesota.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: A few weeks ago I wrote you about a dreadful swelling in my lower limbs, and other troubles. You advised me to get a bottle of the simple herb remedy, compound gentian syrup, and take it. I did so at once, and the happiest results followed. The swelling all left my legs and feet and all signs of dropsy disappeared in a very short time. My bowels have been regular, and from being extremely emaciated I have gained some good flesh. In looking over my files of my paper, I found one of your lectures on dropsy, and followed your directions for bathing, etc. My appetite is very good and I sleep much better. Mrs. A. E. L.

DOCTOR'S CLEVER RUSE.

Has His False Friends Face Each Other at Dinner He Gives Them.

Imitating Timon of Athens, who summoned false friends to a banquet so that he might tell them what he thought of them, a well-known physician of Flatbush, L. I., New York state, invited to a dinner a dozen of his neighbors whom he suspected of having criticised him, and when it was over he told them some unpleasant things about themselves.

It was all because "Mrs. Grundy" would talk at the meetings of a Flatbush card club about the doctor, and it was with a grim sense of humor that he determined to give the dinner party.

This dinner, which was held one evening recently at the physician's home, has set all Flatbush talking. Some of the doctor's guests are among the most fashionable of the South Midwood section.

The doctor had a stenographer and a recording phonograph in an alcove adjoining the dining room, and after the dinner had been enjoyed and the unsuspecting guests were at the height of their congratulations for his hospitality he arose and made known the reason for it.

The doctor's charges and the denials of his guests, who in many instances to save themselves accused others at his table of being responsible for the stories, were carefully taken down by the stenographer and recorded by the phonograph, and when still accusing one another, the guests arose to go, the doctor had the phonograph repeat the whole thing over again for their benefit.

As his guests were leaving the doctor saw them all to the door, and as one by one they left he told them that they would receive in the morning bills for outstanding claims he held against them and need never call upon him again for services.

Quill Toothpicks.

Quill toothpicks come from France. The largest factory in the world is near Paris, where there is an annual product of 20,000,000 quills. The factory was started to make quill pens, but when these went out of general use it was converted into a toothpick mill.

MADDENED BULL RAN AMUCK

BRUTE KEPT THINGS LIVELY UNTIL SHOT DEAD.

Butcher on Horseback Suffered Broken Leg While Mount Was Being Gored by Animal.

St. Louis, July 25.—A maddened three-year-old Durham bull, named "Mike," seriously injured Chris Soltermann, a butcher, Wednesday, at Worden, Ill., 20 miles from St. Louis, kept Gus Albright up a tree for several hours, killed a horse, and by besieging tactics kept the family of Louis Blume imprisoned at home. Finally the bovine "Mike" was shot dead.

"Mike" had been considered dangerous for some time and Blume, the owner, decided to have him killed. Thereupon he sent for the butcher. Astride a horse Butcher Soltermann rode into the Blume farm pasture. "Mike" took a good look and then charged full tilt. Down went horse and matador. Soltermann's right leg was broken at the ankle and dislocated at the knee.

While "Mike" gored the horse Soltermann crawled 40 feet and dropped over a rail fence. An instant later "Mike" tossed the body of the horse over the fence. This attracted Gus Albright, a neighbor farmer, who hastened into the arena to do battle. Then he immediately hastened out of the arena and into a tree where he tied up a ripped trouser leg and remained three hours.

"During this time 'Mike' devoted some attention in an endeavor to effect an entrance into the Blume home but without success. Blume's shouts finally attracted another neighbor who brought a rifle. One bullet converted 'Mike' into a market condition and Soltermann was conveyed to the hospital at Granite City.

STOCK RAISERS TO START FIGHT

Cooperative Company Ready to Combat Rates at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., July 25.—The Cooperative Live Stock Commission company, incorporated in Denver, whose officers, directors and stockholders represent a large part of the sheep and cattle raising industry of the west, has started a contest against the Kansas City live stock exchange. Hostilities will begin September 1. Simultaneously the sheep and cattle raisers will boycott the exchanges of commission men in Chicago and St. Joseph. They propose to sell their stock without paying what they contend is an excessive commission charge. The sheep raisers are leading the movement.

The Cooperative Live Stock Commission company has absorbed the business of two members of the Kansas City exchange and will buy and sell stock independent of the live stock exchange.

The movement is recognized as the beginning of a bitter contest between the producers, backed by the packers, against the commission men. The independent commission company will reduce its commission on sheep two dollars a car, and the same on hogs. The charge on cattle will be the same as that of the live stock exchange.

One of the potent causes for the organization of the Cooperative company was the action of the commission men in advancing charges for the sale of live stock.

MAY PUT JOHNSON IN PRISON

Cleveland's Mayor May Occupy Cell for Contempt of Court.

Cleveland, O., July 25.—Mayor Tom Johnson Wednesday openly defied the law and courts and as a result is menaced with arrest and possible imprisonment.

Headed by Chief of Police Kohler and a score of policemen and followed by 400 workmen, employees of the city and the Forest City Railway company, Mayor Johnson and Director of Public Service Springfield raided the property of the Cleveland Electric Railway company in Fulton road, northwest. Under the guidance of the mayor and Springfield, the tracks were ripped up and piled high on one side of the street. Judge Ford has ordered the mayor and Springfield to appear before him in common pleas court to show cause why they should not be fined or imprisoned for ignoring the order of the court.

END OF PEACE CONFERENCE

Interparliamentary Union Adopts Resolutions and Adjourns.

London, July 25.—The conference of the Interparliamentary union, after a prolonged debate Wednesday, adopted the following resolution: "The interparliamentary union, now assembled in London, expresses the view that the second Hague conference should:

1. By treaty define contraband of war as being restricted to arms, munitions of war and explosives.

2. Reassert and confirm the principle that neither a ship carrying contraband of war nor other goods aboard such ship not being contraband of war may be destroyed.

3. Affirm that even between belligerents private property should be as immune at sea as it is on land."

Hall Ruins Crops.

Lincoln, Neb., July 25.—Dispatches from points in Adams county say a hail storm did heavy damage for a radius of several miles. Around the town of Heartwell crops were totally destroyed; all vegetables being pounded into the ground.

TO REDUCE DIVORCES

Expert Designer Favors Girls Making Their Dresses.

HOW NEAT CLOTHES IMPRESS MEN

Mrs. Evelyn Foote Pleads For Dress-making Course in All Female Schools, Declaring That Most Domestic Tragedies May Be Traced to the Gown Question.

"The divorce evil would not entirely disappear did every woman know how to make her own dresses, but putting her knowledge into practice would certainly greatly reduce the number of divorces annually granted by our courts."

So declares Mrs. Evelyn Foote, expert designer, who recently concluded a lecture course in Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, says a Washington special dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Foote is preaching to the women of these states that a dressmaking course should be added to the curriculum of every girl's college.

"So long as the mistress of the home is unable to design and make her own clothes that home is imperfect," continues Mrs. Foote, who by reason of her fifteen years' experience as an expert designer is entitled to be heard.

"Women are taught cooking. Why are they not taught sewing and dressmaking? The husband returning home tired in mind and body to a frowsy, sloppily dressed wife is the cause of a large percentage of our divorce cases. During business hours men associate with women who dress neatly and are tidy and take care of their personal appearance. If their wife greets them in the evening in a kimono or a dressing sack or a bedraggled dress comparisons are impossible to avoid; and they are odious.

"Why is it that women dress for everybody else except those you love best? Before marriage you spent hours primping in front of the mirror. Six months after marriage you pay no attention to what you wear when your husband is at home. Can you blame him, then, if he seeks the company of wiser women who know the way to a man's heart lies not only through his stomach, but through his eyes as well."

"The young women of our so-called higher institutions of learning should be taught dressmaking just as they are taught piano playing, drawing or cooking. Dressmaking is a fine art. The sooner we recognize that the better for the stability of our social relations."

"I believe that every girl in boarding school, seminary, college and university should take a course in the designing."

and making of dresses whether she receives training in higher mathematics or not. One of the first patrons I had when I began my career was a talented girl who had just graduated from Vassar and who declared to me that she would give almost everything she possessed if she could but make her own shirt waists. Today that girl makes her own gowns, and they are fine enough to wear to the most fashionable receptions.

"But it is the girl of the poorer and the middle, even the ordinarily well to do, classes who need this instruction. In my last lecture tour I met a young bride who for several years had been employed in a business office as books keeper on a salary of $85 a month. She spent her income mainly on dress. Finally she married a man who is receiving $100 or $125 a month, pays $35 a month house rent and has to support himself and wife on the balance. There is little or nothing left for clothing. That girl is today perfectly miserable because she cannot dress as well as she did before she was married. She cannot make one of her own garments, and she cannot afford to have them made as she did before. If a marital tragedy is averted it will be simply because Divine Providence has taken pity on the couple."

"I repeat, let our girls and women learn how to design and make their own garments. There is no telling what the future will bring forth. Even in the present there is a satisfaction in mastering an art, for dressmaking is indeed an art. I am devoting much time in an effort to have a course in dress designing and dressmaking added to the curriculum of the Iowa university, and I am hopeful of success. It will lead to economy and domestic tranquility, of that I am sure."

"This work of teaching the girls cannot begin too early. Dressmaking cannot and should not be taught in the public schools, but flat sewing should be taught there. Many of our schools already do that. All should do it. The great trouble is the schools cannot afford to furnish the materials."

"Let every girl make her own simple garments, bring material, no matter how cheap and learn by experience on her own things. Recently in a public school in Chicago I saw a poor girl working, and what do you suppose she had? An unwashed flour sack, with flour still adhering to it! But that girl had some splendid ideas, and she was working them out oblivious of her material."

"Teach flat sewing in the public schools and advanced sewing in all the higher schools; and there would be more happy homes, less marital misery and a larger balance in the savings bank."
